T. Candace Holladay, ASID, and Claudio J. Noriega, AIA, Architect, have teamed together for more than five years on many exciting projects throughout the country. Holladay, who received her interior design degree from the University of Oklahoma, expanded her design knowledge by taking continuing education courses abroad in Machu Picchu, Peru, Greece and the Aegean Islands. In business for 17 years, she received a "Best Interior Design" award from the N-HA Parade of Model Homes for her design of a model home in Venice, Fla. Noriega, who received his master's degree in architecture from Yale University, has been in business for 12 years and received an "Award for Excellence" in architecture from the Florida chapter of AIA. Together, they have completed work in Florida, New Jersey, Virginia, Arizona and Texas, as well as in Peru and Greece. Several of their high-profile projects have also been published in Florida Design, Florida Architect, Open House and Tampa Bay magazines. State License Nos. ID-0001663; AR-0010130

Holladay and Noriega teamed to complete this expansive estate located on Lake Otis in Wimer Haven. Sculptural rooflines, dormers and arched windows add visual interest to the exterior. Made of solid brick, the two-story residence features a driveway created from pavers that leads to a beautiful porte-cochere. Lush palm trees dot the landscape. This overhead view of the family room, kitchen and sitting area shows the interior's voluminous proportions. Shellstone flooring defines the sitting area off the kitchen, while an area rug from Greece defines the main grouping in the family room. Oak flooring melds with maple cabinetry.
